Post Driver Return Fittings for Tractors

[illegible]

SPECIAL NOTES

- <1> This tractor not recommended for using a driver due to the small oil return port on the tractor.
- <2> Some early model tractors did not have remote hydraulics. Check with your tractor dealer for tractor pressure port location.
- <3> Must have selector control valve.
- <4> Must have outside hydraulic pressure port.
- <5> Pipe nipples required should be black pipe (ungalvanized) and can be purchased locally at a farm or hardware store. A 45° or 90° elbow may be required.
- <6> Tractors with small oil return ports require extra care when using the post driver. Some oil may be forced out the fill opening until the oil warms up. Some of these tractors use the fill port as the hydraulic sump vent and escaping air will cause a small amount of oil to be forced out the fill opening. Plumbing the return line without a vent can cause oil seals in the tractor to be damaged.
- <7> Pipe nipple requires placing a small amount of hydraulic thread sealant on the threads. The pipe nipple then should be tightened by hand until snug. Then turn 1/4 turn more to complete the tightening process. Tightening the pipe nipple more than this amount could result in damaged threads.
- <8> Need to remove the bracket that holds the topline up (2 bolts).
- <9> Return port on tractor is located in front of seat. The return hose may need to be longer. Part #2504143 (4 ft. hose extension).
- <10> Not available at this time.
